PCCC's All-USA Academic Team for Community and Junior Colleges

The Dean's List

In addition 57 students were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa, the national honor society for two-year colleges.

Leonel Cantillo, EOF/SSS Speaker with
Ms. Marva Cole-Friday, Assistant Director,
Trio Student Support Services

Brionne Ramsingh, Honors Program speaker with the Honors Program faculty advisor,
Professor Alexandra Della Fera.

In her inspiring speech, Phi Theta Kappa speaker Cynthia Retuerto stressed the importance of “integrity, ambition, and resilience” to one’s personal and professional success. She also urged her fellow PTK members to “immerse yourself in leadership opportunities,” describing the contacts and travels she enjoys as a member of PTK.

Brionne Ramsingh, commended the Honors Program for allowing him to “showcase my abilities and exceed my goals.” The speaker drew laughs from the assembly when he described a challenging assignment for his fashion marketing class. “I felt as though I woke up in a reality show I was not prepared for.” He discovered, though, that he could meet the challenge. “Community college is a stepping stone to an enriching career,” declared Ramsingh who won a scholarship to Pace University in New York.

A high school dropout who now plans to attend Seton Hall University, EOF speaker Leonel Cantillo declared, “I am on the road to success and have the EOF program to thank for this.” Cantillo told of his first test in a college math class. “I got a 46,” he said. Turning to PCCC’s math lab and tutoring support, he earned a 95 on his next test. “I scored all A’s on every test after that. My final grade in the class was a B-plus,” he said.

In closing remarks, President Rose congratulated all the honorees and their guests and commended the speakers, including EOF speaker Natascha A. Gleabes. “These are among the finest speakers we’ve had,” he said.
